to Grant and the awful tragedy at Ford's Theater live before the spectator of the Griffith drama. In the second half the South's "second uprising," this time against the carpetbag regime, is shown in a thrilling story of reconstruction days. The romance of the "little confederate colonel," Ben Cameron, with the Northerner, Elsie Stoneman, and that of the unionist, Captain Phil Stoneman, with Margaret Cameron, the South Carolina lassie, maintain two threads of continuous love-interest throughout the story. The fun and frolic of plantation days, as well as the heartache and pathos of the stricken South are shown. The great out of doors is Mr. Griffith's special field. Great battle scenes and the rides of the clan are staged with thousands of participants. There are 5,000 scenes in the spectacle, and (it is estimated) no less than 200,000 interesting historical details. On the musical side Mr. Griffith attempted something previously unheard of in connection with motion pictures. This was the synchronizing of a complete symphonic score with the appearance of the important characters and the enactment of the principal scenes. This instrumental music is played by a large orchestra, and supplemented by part-singing behind the scenes. Somehow the old war-time tunes, thus thematically treated, make the "counterfeit presentments" of long ago seem irresistibly real. Among the leading players in what was probably the largest theatrical cast ever assembled may be mentioned Joseph Henabery, as President Lincoln; Donald Crisp and Howard Gaye, as Generals Grant and Lee; Mae Marsh, as Flora Cameron; Henry Wallace, Lillian Gish, Elmer Clifton, Miriam Cooper, as the quartet of lovers; Ralph Lewis, as Congressman Stoneman; Spottiswoode Aiken and Josephine Crowell, as the elder Camerons, and Walter Seligmann, as Lynch.

SENIORS ELECT.

Will Howard, President. Robt. Armstrong, Secretary-Treasurer.

On Tuesday, Feb. 8, the seniors organized the 1916 class by electing Will C. Howard of Moody, Tex., president and Robt. Armstrong of Bryan, secretary-treasurer, by a practically unanimous vote in each case. The class was gratified at the result, as there was a feeling that these men would make good officers and lead the class of '16 to success and honor. The boys responded briefly expressing appreciation of the honor done them and pledging loyalty to the class.—The Maverick (Allen Academy).
